Pastoral Reflections Let me Tell you a Story

What was your favorite book when you were little?
What book or story can you read again and again and never tire of?

I can't tell you how many times I read the entire Little House on the Prairie series (by Laura Ingalls Wilder). Even though its been many years since my childhood, I still return to these books. While I could tell the stories from memory, there is still something about reading them. It has become more than the stories themselves, but the memories of my childhood and relationships that go along with them.

Do you have books like this for you?

What about stories or even specific verses in the Bible? Are there particular ones that you are drawn to again and again? What is it about them that speaks to you?

My "go-to" verse is from Psalm 46:10 "Be still, and know that I am God." Eight simple words that speak so much – even just looking at one of these words (such as "be" or "know") can convey a wealth of memories, meaning, purpose and significance.

The danger with that which becomes overly familiar is that we don't always spend as much time with it. While Chaucer quotes that "familiarity breeds contempt", its not always disdain that we experience, but apathy. We know what it says and know what it has meant to us in the past so we don't really pay attention to all the details. It is important to stop, take a breath and try to listen and read with new eyes and ears; for there is often something new to find in the Word of God.

One of the blessings of preaching is that I am invited to delve into a particular biblical text more fully. After preaching for the better part of 25-30 years, I have found that I have preached on most biblical readings more times than I can count. I could just pull out something from the text from a previous sermon (in my thoughts since they're not on paper), but I'm different than I was before as are we as a community of faith.

During the beginning of the week, I read through the passage, noting those words or phrases that jump out at me. Sometimes I find myself wondering how it is translated elsewhere or what was the Greek or Hebrew word used. I read commentaries, blogs, and other resources that offer additional insights and perspectives. Most Wednesday mornings, I meet with other Lutheran preachers and we talk through the texts. We share what caught our attention, what we had more questions about, how it relates to what is going on in our churches as well as the world. And then I let it percolate as I look towards preaching on Sunday.

One of the key questions to ask of any scripture reading is what is it revealing to me about God? As the Word of God, how is it conveying the love and grace that was brought into this world through Christ? And what is God trying to say to me – to us – in this passage today, right now in our lives?

Reading and reflecting on scripture – no matter how familiar some parts are – is about where God's story and message intersects with our story, our lives. I am certainly not the same as I was 25 years ago. I'm not just in a different physical location, but many things have happened in my life and the world around me since then. You can most certainly say the same.

And so, the question becomes – not just what is your favorite Bible passage, but what are the texts that God has spoken into your life and experience today? What from the readings we hear in worship or that are assigned for daily readings ("sharing God's story @ home" insert) intersect with your daily experiences? What is God saying to you and to us as a community of faith?

I invite you to not just explore these questions on your own, but to share with family as well as within our community of faith God's story revealed in your life.

Peace in Christ, Pastor Jen

Faith @ Home

Remember tracing the outline of your hand to make a turkey in elementary school? Using that image, you are invited to offer prayers of thanksgiving based on each of your fingers (you can even do this activity and write your prayers on its feathers).

Praying with our hands

Thumb - thumbs up for God – what specifically are you thankful about God?

index/pointer finger - point God in the direction of someone for whom you are thankful middle/longest finger – thanksgiving for someone with responsibility of leadership (leaders in church and world);

fourth finger (weakest) - those who work with the weakest in world;

pinkie finger – prayer of thanks for yourself.

Property News

Cool weather is upon us as our Fall season gets off to a comfortable start. Air conditioners have gone into hibernation after serving us well during those hot summer months. Stan, our reliable boiler technician, has cleaned and serviced our furnace and it is now ready to keep us warm and comfortable. We have 700 gallons of oil in our tank and are off to a good start.

“Be prepared”, who many of us recall is the motto of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts everywhere, is good advice throughout life. I enjoy hearing our members ideas for work that should be done in order for us to be prepared and also for improvements that enhance not only our facility but our mission to spread the Gospel. We have recently had wonderful classical music performances on Sunday afternoons and the Brewster Carmel Garden Club bring their events to our beautiful Trinity Church setting. These types of gatherings bring new folks to our church and we are glad to have them and hope they will return to worship with us in the future.

If you know of a group who is looking for a gathering place, please feel free to recommend our church and let Pat Wills know; she has done an excellent job in coordinating our current renters needs with the needs of prospective renters. Thank you all for taking such good care of Trinity in all the work I see you doing...yes, I see you!

Sincerely,
Peter Donoghue

Seafarer's Christmas-at-Sea

Seafarer's International House (SIH) is an ecumenical mission of the Evangelical Lutheran Church and provides pastoral care, social assistance, and advocacy to seafarers and sojourners.

All of us look forward to Christmas with family and friends. For nearly all seafarers, Christmas is a lonely day in the middle of an ocean, without family or friends. This year once again Trinity will participate in the Seafarer's Christmas-at-Sea and help to bring a little joy to these men.

SIH will provide us with 20 satchels and we will fill them after our first service on Sunday, December 8th. Items still needed to fill 20 satchels are:

New Men's Sweatshirt – hooded or unhooded (size L-XL)
New Men's Casual Pullover T-Shirt (sz L-XL)
New Men's dark color socks

Donations can be made until Sunday, December 8th and placed in the Social Ministry tub in the Narthex.

Midnight Run

Midnight Run is the name of a volunteer organization dedicated to providing food, clothing, and personal care items to the homeless on the streets of New York City.

Under its auspice, Trinity did a breakfast run event on Sunday morning, October 20th. On Saturday, Rich Winter, Lana Winters, Kathie, and Larry Ruhs, Deb Lyon, Lois Lawrence and her sister Lori and friend Cara helped to pack 40 bags of toiletries, underwear, and goody bags. They helped sort and pack clothing and make sandwiches. On Sunday morning Pastor Jen, Pattie Kapp, Phil DeRoberts, Doris O'Toole, Tyler O'Toole, Irene and Charlie Germain, Lois Lawrence, and Don and Joanne Icken prepared hot sandwiches, hot drinks, packed the cars and drove to NYC to serve 35 homeless men and women.

Thank you for the toiletries, clothing, and new underwear supplied by members of the congregation. Thank you to Thrivent for providing project seed money which helped pay for the food used to feed the folks.

Thrivent

Thrivent is a not-for-profit financial organization for Christians. It helps members manage their money. They provide life insurance, will and estate planning, health discounts, mutual funds, etc. For more information see thrivent.com.

One of the benefits of being a Thrivent member is that it enables you to apply for project money. For example, when Trinity does a breakfast run to feed the homeless, pack school kits, fleece blankets, baby kits, and personal care kits for Lutheran World Relief or holds a Holiday Market, members can apply for project money which is used for supplies for the event. The project seed money is $250. For example, it enables us to purchase fleece to make fleece blankets or purchase food for breakfast runs to feed the homeless.

As a member, you are entitled to apply for these funds multiple times a year. It enables members who are leading volunteer teams the tools and resources to create memorable volunteer experience and increase the impact on causes you are passionate about.

I am excited to get started and am looking forward to seeing some beautiful faces and listen to some wonderful voices! This year we will also take on something new. Many of our talented youth play instruments and showed interest in performing at our services. Since these are all God's gifts to us, I would like to try collaborating and incorporating these talents into our choir as accompaniments. Therefore, all kids interested in singing in the children's choir, and /or accompanying with instruments, can fill out the sign-up sheet in the Narthex and indicate their preference (or both). Any adult that reads music and can help in this endeavor, is encouraged to contact me.

On an extra note . . .

I know there are many families with children enrolled in sports. Please don't let this deter your child from signing up. I am happy to work something out with our schedules. Any time together is better than no time at all!

LEAVE A SMALLER FOOTPRINT

Terracycle, Its Founder, Mission, and Future

It all began with a bin of worms; not in a corporate office or university lab. While visiting friends in Montreal in 2001, founder Tom Szaky observed hundreds of worms devouring food scraps in their kitchen bin. The end result: fertilizer. Eureka. Could all useless garbage be recycled into something useful?

Back in his dorm at Princeton, Szaky and a friend foraged food from cafeteria dumpsters (we all recall cafeteria food!). His worms produced enough organic fertilizer to package in plastic soda bottles rescued from recycling bins and later distributed to Wal-Mart and Home Depot.

Not content, Szaky wanted to recycle everything. From headquarters in Trenton, NJ, furnished entirely with articles gleaned from the dump, Terracycle operates in 21 countries, partnering with companies which invest in the recycling process. Their goal is to eliminate single-use plastic. For example, Terracycle dismantles deodorant canisters, converts the plastic through a pelletization process into recycled raw materials, which are then sold to businesses. In particular, Unilever and Terracycle have converted the pellets into bicycles, which have been donated to children's charities. Cigarette butts have been converted to park benches; pet food bags into pet bowls. Colgate accepts old toothbrushes and toothpaste tubes; Bausch & Lomb accepts contact lenses and blister packs.

The company's worm poop conversion unit now offers Terracycle African Violet and Terracycle Orchid Plant foods. The regulated waste division provides products and services to facilitate the compliant management of regulated, universal and hazardous waste: fluorescent lamps, bulbs, e-waste, organic waste, and medical waste potentially harmful to the environment.

Many of Terracycle's programs reward participants with points redeemable as donations to nonprofit organizations and schools of their choosing. As of 2019 the company has given more than $44 million in gifts.

At the local level, organizations can purchase Zero-Waste boxes designated for specific categories, such as baby supplies and broken sports equipment. For more information, go to terracycle.com. Szaky states that 75% of US schools are using the boxes.

In May 2019 Szaky launched Loop(loopstore.com). The e-commerce site offers products from brands such as Pantene, Seventh Generation, and Tide in durable reusable packaging. After using the products, customers place the empty containers in a Looptote on the doorstep to be picked up by the delivery service, cleaned, refilled, and then shipped back to the customers - the 21st century's version of the home milk delivery service of yore. Szaky believes that convenience is a must to garner mass acceptance.

Szaky states: "I would love to be in a world where my grandchildren don't know what waste is. They'd only read about a time when there was a big waste problem - because Terracycle did something to change it."

Trinity Finances

You really seem to be listening to me. Last month I asked for your help in cutting our debt and you really responded. Our contributions were up significantly. For that I am very thankful.

And to help our finances along, last month our expenses were unusually low also. Now, that might be a fluke and next month we get some deferred expenses from this past month, but for the time being, I'll take it.

If we can keep this up, you'll only be hearing from me through this message.

However, if things turn around, I'll be up in front of the congregation every week talking about finances.

You've been warned. 😞
